CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DOING ACTIVE WORK

A regular meeting of the local chamber of commerce was held last Wednesday evening.

Several communications on various subjects were received, accepted and ordered filed.

Resolutions of thanks and appreciation of the successful efforts of Assemblyman Henry Ward Brown and Senator Wm. R. Flint of this district in effecting the passage of Assembly Bill No. 1074, granting this city the control of its water front, were unanimously adopted.

The resolutions are as follows:

"Whereas, Hon. Henry Ward Brown by preparing introducing and securing in the legislature the passage of Assembly Bill No. 1074 granting to the city of South San Francisco the control of its water front, has shown by this act a special interest in the welfare of South San Francisco; and

"Whereas, Such control is of great value to this community in its plans for future development; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the thanks of South San Francisco through its chamber of commerce be given to Hon. Henry Ward Brown as an expression of the appreciation of this community for his able and efficient work in its behalf."

"Whereas, Hon. Wm. R. Flint, state senator for this district, did by special effort secure final passage in the senate of Assembly Bill No. 1074, granting to the city of South San Francisco the control of its water front, and has shown by this act a special interest in the welfare of South San Francisco; and

"Whereas, Such control is of great value to this community in its plans for future development; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the thanks of South San Francisco, through its chamber of commerce, be given to Hon. Wm. R. Flint as an expression of the appreciation of this community for his able and effective work in its behalf."

An article published in the San Francisco Chronicle on Wednesday morning, stating that electric lights were being shot out in this city and that serious disturbance was occurring was taken up and thoroughly investigated and it was found there was no foundation for the statements in the article. The secretary was directed to so inform the managing editor of The Chronicle and ask that a correction be made.

E. E. Cunningham, for the committee on a new fire alarm system, reported progress, and the committee was given further time in which to prepare a complete report.

W. J. Martin reported that the local water company had engaged Havilan, Dozier & Tebbetts, engineers, to prepare a local water main map showing location of all water gates. It is the purpose of the company to build reserve reservoirs, so that there will be plenty of water in case of great emergency.

A. P. Scott, for the membership and donation committee, reported the committee had met with considerable success in obtaining donations for the work of the organization.

The subject of home trading was generally discussed, and it was decided to ask all local merchants to meet with the chamber of commerce next Wednesday evening in the city hall at 8 o'clock and adopt some plan by which the idea can be put into effect.

DR. PLYMIRE'S AUTO STOLEN AND RECOVERED

After midnight last Saturday night thieves entered Dr. H. G. Plymire's garage and quietly rolled his automobile out into Spruce avenue and took it and several gallons of gasoline and lubricating oil and all the tools they could find around the place and started to leave for parts unknown. About daylight Sunday morning Ernest Palany discovered and recognized the machine near his residence in Frenchtown. He did not pay any attention to it, supposing the doctor was attending to some case in the neighborhood. An hour or two later he became suspicious and went out to the machine and found the doctor's overcoat and satchel and took them into his home for safe keeping. Later, Dr. Plymire was notified and the auto was returned. The thieves evidently intended taking a long ride, but not knowing the streets of the city became stalled and abandoned it.

SEWER BOND ISSUE CARRIED BY OVER 5 TO 1

Last Tuesday an important forward step in the march of progress was taken by this city when its citizens voted in favor of a $62,000 bond issue for a new general sanitary sewer system by over 5 to 1.

A vote of 303 was cast in both precincts, or over 50 per cent of the total registration.

The detailed vote as cast is as follows:

Precinct No. 1—For, 195; against, 35. Precinct No. 2—For, 60; against, 13. Total—For, 255; against, 48.

The local chamber of commerce took a leading part in the success of the bond issue, and citizens F. A. Cunningham, J. W. Coleberd and E. E. Cunningham deserve especial credit for the good work they did on election day.

Dr. H. G. Plymire very kindly donated the use of his automobile in the afternoon in taking voters to the polls, in addition to Chas. Luscher's auto from Redwood City which had been chartered by the chamber of commerce for the same purpose.

Some opposition developed to the bond issue, but not sufficient to jeopardize its success.

WORK OF A
WOMAN'S CLUBHow It Transformed Calhoun,
Ga., by Hard Work.

THE LOG CABIN A SUCCESS.

Combination Club Room and Resting Place For Country Shoppers Has Boomed Town's Business and Attracted Home Seekers.

As the train slowed up at a small town on the road from Atlanta to Chattanooga a stranger asked me to look out on the right hand side and "see what some women have done to a Georgia village," says Edward A. Abbott in the American City.

Looking out, I saw down by the rail road right of way a charming bit of parking, a narrow green space two or three blocks long and a block wide. Running in and out among great trees and flowering shrubs there was a little stream with clean banks and clear water. On its way the brook passes under a stone bridge alongside some pretty flower beds and on farther to the Log Cabin, the clubhouse of the local women's club. This object lesson, showing the fine taste and public spirit of the women of Calhoun, lies between the town's business street and the ugly depot. It can be plainly seen from the car window, making the traveler curious to know more about the place and its people. So it is a fine advertisement of Calhoun.

All this and more has been done to a piece of public property which ten years ago, a local historian said, was "an unsightly spot, where weeds run riot and frogs croak contentedly in the slimy ditch water."

Even more remarkable than the little park is the Log Cabin, and still more noteworthy are the women who conceived and executed this and other civic betterments. They wisely said after the cabin was built, "It must be a rest room for country women and children as well as the meeting place for the club." And this came to pass.

This vine clad cabin is set in the midst of an extensive lawn, with roses and shrubbery. It has a spacious rock chimney and wide verandas, with rough cedar posts. It contains two large rooms, with lavatories, running water and all the things that go to make such a place useful and restful. It is heated in winter, lighted with electricity, has a piano, a library of several hundred books and reading tables supplied with newspapers and magazines.

A paid matron is at the cabin during business hours to look after the little children of the country women who come to town to trade at the stores. This beneficent feature of the cabin's administration can be best appreciated by those who have "clerked" in a country store and seen the painful efforts of a woman to shop with a baby in her arms, while other cross and whining youngsters were pulling at her skirts or racing up and down the store, bent on getting into something out of which they must be dragged or coaxed by the anxious storekeeper or the harried mother. So the cabin helps business. It pays!

So well has the rest house proved its right to be that the town council now donates $60 and the county commissioner $50 annually for its upkeep. Getting $110 a year from town and county officials for such a purpose is not the least of the things done by the eighty-six members of the Calhoun Woman's club, of which Mrs. C. C. Harlan is president and Mrs. H. C. Ogden is corresponding secretary.

If this little story of a Georgia village's venture in civic uplift induces other public spirited women to start something, its object will have been attained and its writer will be glad to have done something to help make life in little places more endurable—more useful.

INTERESTING CIVIC EXPERIMENT IN OHIO.

What Public Spirited Man Is Doing For Small Towns.

A civic experiment which should be of interest to small towns in every state is being carried out in Ohio. Its success thus far has led to an unusual offer.

Five towns which first accept the conditions of the gift will receive $1,000 each from William E. Harmon of New York. The offer is made to towns having a population of less than 7,000. Through it Mr. Harmon hopes to extend work of the sort which is being carried on by the Civic trust of Lebanon, O., established by him in his native town.

The offer applies to the provision of a permanent playground and gymnasium adequate to the needs of the community involving an investment of not less than $10,000. It is limited to such movements as begin after or take their incentive from the announcement and to a period of two years from the date of their publication.

Mr. Harmon himself tells how he suddenly realized that as a village boy he had no place to play ball. Believing that the greatest permanent value attaches to the gifts of land, he decided to try out in Lebanon a plan to provide recreation and stimulate civic spirit. The small park has gymnasium facilities, playground and a swimming pool and skating pond formed by the "Kids' dam," as it has already been named. Under competent and promotional direction, the undertaking has awakened a dormant community into a variety of social and co-operative activities. An endowment yielding $3,000 a year has been provided, and the management is lodged in a board of seven trustees acting under the name of the Civic trust of Lebanon.

The example has struck root, and others have made gifts to the town for various purposes. The results of his initial experiment have been so encouraging that Mr. Harmon greatly desires to induce other towns to establish similar trusts.

PUSH YOUR TOWN.

Don't put your name down and your money up and then let go. Catch hold firmly and pull with the rest. Get under and lift; don't be a leaver. Don't be a kicker or a knocker. Don't be a drone or a figure-head. Give your home stores a chance. Be a real, live, redhot enthusiast. Help your own town first.—W. D. Wilmot.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

It does not seem to be likely that Miss Julia Lathrop will be removed from the head of the children's bureau on account of a change in the administration, as many officeholders will remain, among them Charles P. Neill as commissioner of labor, under whose department the bureau will be classed.

Miss Inez Milholland suggests that girls who are incorrigible be sent to a farm or trade school where they could be taught useful industries. It seems almost impossible for them to learn any place else, as, once having had a bad reputation, it clings to a girl, and no employer likes to have such girls associated with the respectable men and women.

In Paris the authors have a woman who sets them right as to the details of the dress of the women they write about. She tells them whether they have used the right words to describe the dress and whether the colors that are fashionable are named. The woman who does this is always anonymous, and no one but herself and the author is aware of her existence.

The Texas legislature adopted the bill that will give women the same property rights as men by a vote of seventy-four to forty-three, notwithstanding the fact that a few minutes before the house had rung with applause of the speech of Mr. Bagby, in which he begged that the old chivalrous idea that the southern man protects his wife be not abandoned and the wife become little more than mistress in the household. Mrs. Hortense Ward of Houston, who had worked for the bill, grew anxious when she heard the applause that greeted the pretty sentiment, but the vote proved that it was for the eloquence rather than the plea.

PLANT FRUIT TREES
IN THE SCHOOL YARD.

A Teacher Who Tried It Tells of Her Great Success.

Agriculture is now being taught in many rural schools, and great stress is being laid on the school garden. From practical experience as a teacher I find that fruit trees planted on the school ground prove far more profitable and interesting, says a writer in the American Agriculturist. The school usually closes in June, when the garden is making its greatest struggle against weeds. Very few children can tend to the school garden during the summer months, and when the fall term opens the garden is overrun with weeds and presents a very discouraging appearance. Often in the spring passing animals cause great damage in the garden, and little profit can be made.

By the growing of fruit trees practical lessons may be given on planting, pruning, fertilizing, spraying, gathering, packing and marketing the fruit. The work can be done during the school terms. In the winter outdoor work proves very interesting, and the pruning of trees can be studied by pupils bringing shears and doing the work under the guidance of the teacher. The formation and development of buds, leaves and fruit can be watched until the fruit is well developed. Spraying can be done in both winter and spring, and in the fall the gathering and marketing can be done.

The first year I had fruit trees on the school plot the pupils cleared $5 from the sale of the fruit and applied the money to improving the school building. Great interest can be aroused in a school when practical results can be obtained. The garden calls for much more labor and is discouraging for both teacher and pupil.

In place of the shade trees usually selected the fruit trees will prove as attractive and far more profitable both financially and morally, for every child will enjoy school better if he can carry his dinner outside and gather cherries or large, sweet apples to add to it. You who have known this realize the affection felt for the old favorite tree.

THE WINDOW BOX.

It Improves Appearance of the Whole House.

With what high hopes do hundreds of flower lovers start porch and window boxes in the spring only to see the plants wither and flowers fade before the season has half gone by. And yet it is possible to have a thrifty little garden on the porch or in the window until long after frost comes. To begin with, a strong box, fully eight inches deep, is needed. Many people err in using boxes that are too shallow and so dry out quickly. The box must be the garden. Well rotted manure may be mixed with the soil or a small amount of bone meal added. The third requirement is water in abundance. Soil in boxes dries out much more quickly than that in the garden and, if neglected, the plants will perish of thirst. Daily watering is needed if the box is in the sun.

When the middle of summer comes window boxes that made a brave show up to that time begin to look seedy and forlorn. They need to be fed, and several light coats of manure will carry them nicely through the season, or the plants may be watered weekly with manure water the color of weak tea.

The geranium is well adapted to white houses of the conventional type and variegated vinca supplants it well. Nasturtiums, too, look well with such a house. It often happens that a box filled with vines only is more attractive when used on a brick house than one boasting a profusion of flowers. Ivy and moneywort, like vinca, are good vines to grow. If the soil is made extra rich and the climbing nasturtiums used there will be a wealth of foliage and not overmuch bloom. Other good decorative trailers are thunbergia, which grows rapidly and has many dark eyed blossoms in buff, orange and white, and variegated Japanese hop.

Pansies may be grown in the porch and window box very early in the season and later replaced with geraniums and other plants.

is a rapidly growing city; it is a railroad terminal; it is on the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and accessible to all railroads; has deep water communication; owns and operates for its industries a railroad connecting with the Southern Pacific and the water front; has electric street car service from factory to Town, and direct to San Francisco; has an Electric Light and Power Company; owns an independent Water Works, and has an abundance of fresh water for factory and house; has wharves and docks; a perfect sewerage system; a Bank and a Town Hall; and a population of over 3000 people an extensive and fine residence district, where everyone may secure lands at reasonable prices and on favorable terms, as homes for themselves and their families.

can be obtained from the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Company on most reasonable terms.

The completion of the Bay Shore Tunnels has placed South San Francisco on the main lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and forty passenger trains per day connect it with the outside world.

Owing to the completion of the Dumbarton Bridge and Cutoff, South San Francisco will soon have all railroads which center in San Francisco passing through its midst.

Many industries are already established here, chief of which are the Western Meat Company, the Wool Pullery, the Soap Works, the Steiger Pottery Works, the W. P. Fuller & Co. Paint Works, the South San Francisco Lumber and Supply Company, the Pacific Coast Steel Company, the Pacific Car and Equipment Company, the Standard Corrugated Pipe Works, and other enterprises, all of which are in operation to-day. The Meese Gottfried Machinery Company and the Enterprise Foundry of San Francisco have each recently made purchases of land, and South San Francisco is plainly destined to fulfill all that its promoters had hoped.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO GETS CONTROL, BY LEGISLATIVE ENACTMENT, OF ITS WATER FRONT.

Assembly Bill No. 1074, introduced last January by Hon. Henry Ward Brown, entitled, "An Act Granting to the City of South San Francisco the Salt Marsh, Tide and Submerged Lands of the State of California, including the right to wharf out therefrom to the City of South San Francisco, and regulating the management, use and control thereof," has passed both houses of the Legislature.

Alameda, Berkeley, Point Richmond and several other bay front communities obtained this privilege from the Legislature early in its session. The bill granting to South San Francisco the same privilege was pocketed in the Senate and it looked for a long time as though it would be impossible for South San Francisco to obtain this favor. In spite of the fact that several delegates from the local Chamber of Commerce and from the City Trustees of South San Francisco on various occasions presented the rights of the city in this respect to the legislative committees, the bill was held in abeyance in the Senate up to the day of adjournment.

City Attorney J. W. Coleberd and W. J. Martin visited Sacramento last Saturday and made a final effort in behalf of the bill. Through the indefatigable work and ability of State Senator Wm. R. Flint and Assemblyman Henry Ward Brown, who exerted every influence in their possession, was it possible to secure the passage of the bill. This community as well as the entire county of San Mateo appreciates the efforts of their able representatives.

When it is considered that this bill was passed practically on the last day of the meeting of the Legislature and thousands of bills were being smothered and permitted to die without being acted upon, the character of the work done by our representatives will be more fully appreciated.

The bill will probably be signed by Governor Johnson within the thirty day period and as soon as this is done the first important step in the program of making South San Francisco a deep sea port will have been taken.

COUNTY DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION AT WORK

(Communicated.)

"At the present time the Peninsula is being saved hundreds of thousands of dollars every year as a result of the fight waged by the San Mateo County Development Association for lower railway fares on the Southern Pacific lines, and as a result of the decision reached by the board of governors at its meeting Tuesday night there is a possibility of a still greater saving being effected.

"Another complaint against the corporation will be filed before the State Railroad Commission which will center chiefly about the one way rates and a few other discriminatory fares that are still in force. At the time that the preliminary conferences were held with Southern Pacific officials relative to the original complaint, which was dismissed by stipulation on October 25, 1912, consideration was given to the one way rates then and now in vogue. The transportation officials endeavored to base the discussion of all rates upon the proposed building of an electric express service in the near future and on their earnest insistence that the one way rates would be fully taken care of by such a service in the near future consideration of those charges was passed for the time being.

"Since that time committees of the association have endeavored in many instances to obtain information regarding the building of this proposed service, but they have been wholly unsuccessful, every answer secured from the railroad being extremely hazy in its indefiniteness. As a result and after careful consideration of the whole topic it has been decided to initiate a new fight on this matter, the preliminary plans and steps of which have been placed in the hands of the new transportation committee consisting of D. G. Doubleday, chairman; Rev. W. A. Brewer, W. J. Martin, S. D. Merk and W. H. Brown.

"Bids for the printing of the road bonds to be issued to cover the first contracts let under the bond issue are to be let by the board of supervisors at its meeting next Monday. One of the important steps that has been taken amongst the vast number of preliminaries necessary to clear the way for actual construction is that made by District Attorney Swart who has started suit against the Spring Valley for the purpose of compelling the water company to remove their flume adjacent to the San Bruno road in San Bruno. A number of efforts to have this eyesore removed by negotiations have failed and the suit has been started with the idea of securing its removal before road work is commenced if possible.

"The annual banquet of the development association will be held at Sequoia Hotel, Redwood's new hostelry, on May 28th, cards for which will be issued in a few days. Reports received from a special committee show that county taxes as far as equalization is concerned are on a fair and reasonable basis, the committee holding itself in readiness to take up any specific cases that are submitted to it through the association office. Appointments for the tri-county committee have been completed by San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties and a meeting on the affairs of importance to the whole Peninsula will be held in the near future.

A Correction.

The amount stated as total assets of this order in California, with its 119 councils, should have been as follows: Reserve fund, $178,015.76; special, $37086.38; general, $4639.93; grand total, $219,742.07. J. V. Dens, supreme treasurer.

The ninth district council of California meets in San Rafael, the 21st and 22d of this month. The delegates from Progress Camp, No. 425 of South San Francisco are John Bernardo and M. Empenia. They received their instructions at the last session of the camp and may be termed progressives. While 425 does not consist of a large membership, it is one of the oldest orders in South San Francisco and is in a better position today than it ever was, so far as local conditions are concerned. Assistance was rendered to a member of Benicia Camp, and $10 was ordered drawn on the bank toward payment of Fraternal Hall stock contracted for. It was also decided to hold an invitation social in the near future. The camp sessions are full of interest, while that of Wednesday evening last will be long remembered as one of the best held during the year 1913. Refreshments will of course.

The strike in connection with gas and electricity may be the cause that not a wireless even has been received by local member, from its delegates now meeting at Venice. One would have thought that a combination like the one sent consisting of T. C. McGovern, Dr. J. C. McGovern, Hon. A. McSweeney and John Fischer would not have forgotten their home brothers. Perhaps distance lends enchantment to the view. Arrangements for the drill team dance are rapidly rounding into shape. June 7th will prove a record making date. That's all.

CALIFORNIA INVENTORS.

The following patents were just issued to California inventors reported by D. Swift & Co., patent lawyers, Washington, D. C., who will furnish copies of any patent for ten cents apiece to our readers.

DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION ISSUES FOLDER

The San Mateo County Development Association has issued a thirty-two page folder setting forth the advantages of San Mateo county for factory and suburban home sites. The reading matter was well prepared and several half-tone illustrations are distributed through its pages. Ten thousand of these folders were printed and if properly distributed will prove a good advertisement for the county.

"THE SKIRMISHER."

A copy of "The Skirmisher," No. 3, Volume 32, a commencement journal issued by the cadets of St. Matthews Military School at Burlingame, has been received at this office.

The publications is clearly printed on good paper and filled with well written articles which would be a credit to experienced literary men and women.

Its pages are also interspersed with half-tone illustrations of cadets and catchy sketch drawings.

St. Matthews Military School was founded in 1866 and has a large corps of instructors, headed by Rev. W. A. Brewer, A. B., Rector.

The school curriculum provides completely organized classes in primary, grammar school and high school work. The courses of study are so arranged as to provide the very best preparation for admission to any college or university in the United States. Special attention is given to preparing boys for admission to West Point and Annapolis. St. Matthews School is accredited at the University of California and Stanford University, and graduates of the school are admitted to these institutions, and to a number of eastern universities, without examination.

PARCEL POST A SUCCESS

Congressman Lewis of Maryland, who is considered the "Father of the Parcel Post" is busy at work on a bill making radical changes, which he proposes to introduce in Congress making a substantial reduction in the parcel post rates. The operation of the parcel post which is much lower than the express rate, is nevertheless, yielding an immense profit to the postoffice department. As it is not the object of this system to wring a profit from the public, the rate should be lowered at once, and the bill by Congressman Lewis will probably be passed during the present extra session.

The Oakland Merchants are reported to be a crack nine, therefore a good game is expected.

JACK JOHNSON FOUND GUILTY

Prize Fighter Is Convicted in Chicago of White Slavery

Jack Johnson, champion heavy-weight prizefighter, has been found guilty in Chicago of violating the Mann law in transporting Belle Schreiber from Pittsburg to Chicago in 1910. He was convicted on all seven counts in the indictment. The jury returned its verdict after an hour's consideration. The maximum penalty under the finding is five years' imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both, on each count.

A motion of Assistant District Attorney Harry Parkin that Johnson be ordered confined in the County Jail was overruled by Judge Carpenter, and the negro was released on bonds of $10,000. A motion for a new trial was filed at once by counsel for Johnson.

Johnson was charged with having furnished Miss Schreiber with $75 with which to come from Pittsburg to Chicago. Miss Schreiber testified that upon her arrival Johnson furnished a flat, which, she said, had been devoted to immoral purposes. She also described trips around the country which, she said, she had made with the prizefighter at his expense.

This was in 1910, just before the marriage of Johnson to Etta Duryea, the divorced wife of an Eastern horseman. She shot herself to death eight months ago, leaving letters to her mother indicating that she had brooded over her own downfall and Johnson's neglect.

Two months later Johnson was arrested by the Chicago police on the charge of having abducted Lucile Cameron, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Cameron-Falconet of Minneapolis, Minn. Miss Cameron had been employed as cashier at Johnson's restaurant. These charges were dropped and Johnson and the Cameron girl were married.

Lucille Cameron Johnson, his present wife, did not appear in the courtroom at the trial, his attorneys fearing the effect of her presence. Mrs. Tiny Johnson, the negro's mother, however, sat constantly at his side. The suggestion of Johnson's "golden smile," which had been on his lips during the time of the jury's deliberations, faded when the clerk pronounced the word "guilty."

Johnson on the stand admitted that he had sent Miss Schreiber money in response to her request by telephone, but denied that he had made any stipulation that she should use it to come to Chicago.

President Charles C. Moore has received word from the State Department at Washington, D. C., that Brazil has formally accepted the invitation extended by the President of the United States to participate in the 1915 Universal Exposition. In the absence of Archibald Barnard, Vice-Consul of Brazil, who is ill, Eugene Gespret, Commercial Agent in charge, declared his gratification when informed that Brazil would take part.

San Francisco's consolidation amendment was beaten through the opposition of Los Angeles Assemblymen. The proposed constitutional amendment authorized the change of boundaries between San Mateo and San Francisco Counties, provided a majority of the people in the territory to be annexed and in the territory annexing voted for the consolidation. A freeholders' charter was assured the people of the new territory.

For the first time in the history of the Legislature a bill failed to receive an affirmative vote in the Assembly. The measure is that of Senator Anderson (S. B. 824), which seeks to prohibit a teacher from keeping a pupil after school in the afternoon unless the parents of the pupil are notified of the fact. Weisel of Santa Ana brought the bill up, but when he heard it discussed he hadn't the heart to vote for it himself, and it was defeated unanimously.

The flour mill of the Tulare Milling

Company, at Tulare, was destroyed by fire a few days ago. The damage is estimated at $25,000, of which only $12,000 is covered by insurance. The cause of the fire has not been ascertained, and officials are investigating, believing that it had an incendiary origin. It was only by the heroic efforts of hundreds of spectators and the local fire department that the fire was prevented from destroying several business buildings adjoining.

The City of San Diego has applied to the Railroad Commission for an order fixing the rates to be charged by the city for water it serves to consumers outside the municipal boundaries. The municipality recently took over the water system of the Southern California Mountain Copper Company, and has since been conducting it as a municipal system. It supplies water to communities outside its boundaries, and would charge a higher rate than that assessed against consumers within the city.

Seven hundred students of the State University will this week bid adieu to the campus which has been their stamping ground for four years to seek a standing in the outer world, where they will become conversant with the practical problems of a business or professional life, rather than the theoretical problems as exemplified in their text-books at college. It will mark an important epoch in their history, but it will be a historical event of even greater interest to the University as it will be the fiftieth commencement week on the campus.

Under the provisions of the bill as it now stands no intoxicants can be sold between the hours of 2 and 6 A. M. at any place in the State.

According to reports, the canneries of the San Joaquin Valley are about the only agencies that are taking any active interest at the present time in fruit. Buyers for the canneries, both in the San Joaquin and in the northern part of the State, are very anxious to secure cling peaches, which seem to be scarce, and good prices are being offered. In some instances canneries have been taking contracts on freestone peaches. It reported that some of the canneries were paying $22.50 per ton for orange cling peaches, $27.50 for Tuscans and $30 a ton for Phillips.

Unless executive clemency is prevailed upon in the meantime, five condemned men, now confined at San Quentin penitentiary, will expire their crimes upon the gallows at that institution Friday, May 23d. The men were sentenced in as many different counties, and three—Ah Ling, a Chinese convicted of killing one of his countrymen in Stanislaus County; Frank Bowerarts, who murdered his sweetheart in Riverside County, and F. Mammalito, Alameda County—have their cases under appeal and may gain stays of execution. Harry Allen, who killed his wife in Butte County, and Lee Chin, a Korean convicted of killing a Chinese in San Joaquin County, however, are clinging to the slender thread of executive clemency as the only power that can save them.

Santa Barbara appears to have gone "dry" at its recent election. The vote on the proposition of closing the saloons was "dry" 2073, "wet" 1837. The remaining vote is not sufficient to give any hope to the "wets" unless it is overwhelmingly in their favor, which does not seem likely. By a vote of 231 to 130, Colfax decided to remain wet. This is the second victory for the wets in Placer County within the last few days. Auburn having voted against prohibition. The "wet" forces won an overwhelming victory at Watsonville. The attempt to close the saloons under the Wylie local option law was defeated by a vote of 1259 to 864.

Barney Bertsche, politician and former convict, of Chicago, accused by State's Attorney Horne of having arranged protection to a ring of pickpockets, safeblowers and wire-tappers, who was arrested in a spectacular raid, was released on bonds. Bertsche was booked on a charge of conspiracy, after detectives had beaten down the door of his home and overpowered him. The State's Attorney charges that Bertsche arranged for the importation of a ring of confidence men on the claim that he did extend protection to them. Numerous other politicians as well as some members of the Police Department are involved in the conspiracy, according to the State's Attorney.

HORN NO LONGER BAPTIST MINISTER

San Jose Association Revokes Ordination of Richmond Pastor

At its annual meeting in Morgan Hill, the San Jose Baptist Association, composed of nineteen churches between Redwood City and Salinas, revoked the ordination of Rev. Frank Horn, the exposure of whose matrimonial difficulties while he was pastor of the Richmond, Cal., church, created a sensation, which stirred Baptist circles all over the State. The bare facts were given out to the press following the sessions of the delegates.

During the session the association also took occasion to indorse the minority faction of the church at Los Gatos, which resigned from the church body of which Rev. Robert Whitaker is pastor when Whitaker's ideas on baptism and his socialistic creeds were no longer acceptable to them, although favored by the majority of the members.

The minority was instructed to take all possible steps to protect the interests of the denomination and to make demand for the property. The Rev. Robert Whitaker was a candidate for Congress from the Eighth District at the last election on the Socialist ticket, and is widely known for his unorthodox beliefs.

He declares that immersion is not a necessary form of baptism, and it was this principally on which the church split. He holds that the fact and not the form of baptism is the essential.

That the scandal in connection with the elopement of Rev. F. A. S. Jensen, formerly pastor of the church at Morgan Hill, was discussed was evidenced in the report of the meeting, which chronicled Jensen's resignation and announced two expulsions, without giving either the names of the circumstances.

Jensen has recently filed a dismissal of his suit for divorce, which he began a few weeks after the announcement of his runaway match with the wife of a farmer.

Resolutions were adopted warning small churches against opening their buildings to itinerant preachers teaching strange cults.

There are two things which disturb Dr. Friedmann and his manager, Moritz Eisner, even more than the unfavorable Government opinion on the tuberculosis remedy. One is the fact that Dr. M. M. The other was the information which reached Dr. Friedmann's ears that the same Dr. Sturm had acquired during the two months in which the two were constant companions, the secrets of making and administering the tuberculosis vaccine.

Woman's World

to Help Fight Cancer.

MRS. JAMES SPEYER.

A number of prominent women are active in the campaign that is being organized to make a national fight against that dread disease, cancer. Experts claim that, while tuberculosis is decreasing, cancer is increasing.

At a recent meeting in New York prominent men and women discussed ways and means of carrying on the work.

It is hoped to establish headquarters and carry on the work through an organization as in the case of the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The campaign of education, by the new organization will include the publication of articles in newspapers and magazines, distribution of pamphlets and seeking of co-operation by women's clubs, special instruction in nurses' training schools and lectures before mothers' clubs and groups of nurses and physicians.

Among the prominent women who have taken up this work is Mrs. James Speyer, wife of the New York banker. She has long been noted for her splendid humanitarianism and for her intelligent and enthusiastic work in behalf of those reforms in which she is interested. Mrs. Speyer is perhaps the most distinguished woman advocate of a more enlightened and humane attitude in our treatment of dumb animals.

Mrs. Speyer is said to have a wonderful head for figures. At least so one might judge from the fact that she always has accurate statistics at her tongue's end about any one of the different organizations in which she is interested and that she is treasurer of St. Mary's Free Hospital For Children, of the Girls' Athletic league, of the Women's Auxiliary of the Saturday and Sunday Hospital association and has been treasurer for twenty-nine years of the Irene club, an organization of working girls established in New York by Miss Grace Dodge, which has become the mother club of innumerable working girls' "friendly associations," settlement classes and claims to be part sponsor of the Manhattan Trade school.

Mrs. Speyer's personality bespeaks intense activity. She is of slight, wiry build, has quick, sharp eyes and a very mobile face, with which she enlivens her conversation.

Philosophy of Life.

Determine once for all that you are never going to pity yourself. You are to take things as they come. You will not whine because you have no chance, but will make the best of whatever happens. You will adjust yourself to events and not complain because you cannot have things as you would like them.

Decide that you will be uniformly cheerful. You will put away all sulking, gloom and morbidness as being poison. You will steadily cultivate brightness and cheer as a habit, says Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World. You can do this. What happens to you has nothing to do with the case. It all depends upon you.

Resolve to cultivate courage. Say to yourself that you will not be afraid, whatever comes along. The coward never did amount to anything. It is by being afraid that people become low, vile weaklings. All goodness is a form of moral courage.

Resolve also to be honest with yourself and with the world, that you will never seek to have any merit you do not possess nor take any money you have not earned nor desire praise when you do not deserve it.

To Bleach Faded Frocks.

The colored frock or blouse that has become faded with frequent launderings and from wear in the sun may be bleached to a clear white by boiling in cream of tartar water. The correct quantity to be used to make the garment a pure white is a teaspoonful of the powder to a quart of water.

BON VOYAGE GIFTS.

Special Steamer Cake Boxes Are Acceptable Offerings.

Be very sure that your friend who is setting forth shortly for Europe or the Mediterranean is an excellent sailor before you scatter your substance in costly floral offerings. The fate of most cut flowers sent as bon voyage remembrances is a salty grave, and, unless the stewardess desires for herself the expensive orchids, roses and violets that are hastily turned over to her, when once the vessel begins to roll, overboard they go.

If one's friend is an experienced sailor one of the special steamer cake boxes will make an acceptable bon voyage gift. These boxes are fitted with lock and key and may be used afterward for the safe keeping of personal belongings. Inside are little trays and drawers, each filled with appetizing sweet and spiced cakes. Afternoon tea on board the steamer is a great institution, and the woman who can dispense hospitality in the way of delicious little cakes is sure to be popular. Preserved ginger in the small blue jars in which it is put up is another thoughtful bon voyage remembrance, for there are times when at the thought of anything except preserved ginger and a lemon the very soul sickens.

A steamer rug is a substantial and handsome gift, and a rug, pillows and rubber lined case in which these belongings may be packed for storage until the return voyage is a gift that any traveler will be overjoyed to receive.

Summer Coats.

Cotton eponge coats will be worn during the summer, as their suppleness and noncrushing quality make them preferable to those of linen. Besides the severely tailored styles, the draped models will be much worn because eponge has been woven in much finer qualities this season. The fillet mesh weave is particularly good looking.

The mackinaw coats of last summer have been replaced by outing coats that have much more style, and they are in styles that will be more becoming to the majority of women. These new coats are generally of a fine worsted, serge or whipcord in a bright shade of green or red, a rich shade of tan, chambray or leather, or in a striped or checked black and white. A long hip length Norfolk style, with collar and cuffs of white kidskin, broadcloth or eponge, is the most popular.

A smart mackinaw in checked black and white is illustrated here.

Sun-dry Reflections.

The sun in summer has a way of rising in the day, although there need not be such haste, for mother's son has time to waste.

In winter mother's son's awake when morning light begins to break, but really it is most surprising how late the other sun is rising.

Milady's Mirror

For Summer's Tan.

If your skin becomes sunburned you have no time to lose. You may laugh at the idea of special treatment because you have often been burned and brown without, as you believe, any really harmful results. Such results may not be fully apparent at once, but in a short time small faint lines appear, and the skin assumes a sort of dry and cracked appearance. These lines, although faint at first, if not properly treated become deeper and soon develop into premature wrinkles.

As a soothing application and cure for sunburn buttermilk is most effective. Apply it freely with a soft cloth and rub it will into the face, neck and chest. The hands and arms should receive applications also if they have been burned. Then the parts must be thoroughly saturated with the milk and allowed to dry.

Now put a teaspoonful of borax into a basin of tepid water and carefully and gently wash off the buttermilk. Pat the skin with an old bit of soft linen and then with the finger tips massage or work into the skin very softly some of the lumpy pieces of the milk and allow it to dry thoroughly into the skin. Buttermilk not only bleaches and cleanses the skin, but it nourishes and feeds the dry and shriveled parts. After sunburn buttermilk should be applied as soon as possible and allowed to remain on the skin. Soap and water must not be applied while the skin stings or smart.

To obtain a soft elastic skin the buttermilk treatment must be repeated daily. A disagreeable feature of the milk as a cosmetic is its odor. For this reason it is sometimes best to apply it at night and to use reliable skin food and powder during the day. However, if you are alone and you do not mind the odor then bathe in it all you wish. Because of its efficiency as a bleach and as a food both for the body and skin and because of its commendable cheapness, which is a point well worth considering, it occupies an important position in relation to health and beauty.

Fresh Air Always.

Seize upon every chance to keep out in the open air. If you can do no more, stick your head out of the window as many times a day as you can. Walk instead of ride whenever you can, whether you feel like it or not. Train yourself to it. Keep out of the cars as much as possible; the air in them is not of the purest. On all occasions walk, exercise, play, do anything in the open if it is only to sit in the sun and take a sun bath. Get this one point well fixed in your mind—that the greatest tonic given us is the fresh air, whether it be cold or warm, rainy or sunny, clear or murky. It is always healthful and the finest element that we can take into our systems.

Cause of Dandruff.

There are four main causes for the prevalence of dandruff—ill health, worry, pressure of close hats and the use of quantities of false hair. Ill health, especially nervous disorders, are instantly communicated to the scalp. When one feels full of life and energy the hair responds readily to the hurried or careless touch. When ill, hair is stubborn, stringy and generally unruly. Worry is really an affection of the nerves, so that those who indulge in this form of mental folly always pay the price in dull, oily looking coiffures and irritating dandruff.

Improving the Looks.

We owe it to our friends as well as ourselves to look our best at all times, and the girl who can improve her appearance without harming herself should do so. Nothing gives us quite the self confidence as to feel we look well.

Actresses are usually warm hearted, sensible and cheerful. That is because they make the best of themselves in face and form. An old saying is true, "The face is often a reflex of the mind," and in a measure it is no less true that the mind is a reflex of the face.

For the Outdoor Girl.

A hot bath and a vigorous rubbing after a day outdoors is a necessity both for cleanliness and to prevent fatigue. The feet and the face and hair naturally suffer most, and where much walking is done one should be careful not only to bathe the feet in lukewarm water and soda at night, but also to keep the soles powdered and take heed that the stockings are well fitting and without creases. Even though the shoe be well fitting much misery is caused by too long, too short or too heavy stockings.

For Headaches.

When the first symptoms of a headache appear take one teaspoonful of clear lemon juice fifteen minutes before each meal and at bedtime and continue until symptoms are past. For biliousness plain lemon juice and water is very good. It allays fever and promotes sleep and appetite.

Hangnails.

If the cuticle about your nails seems tough and there is a tendency to hangnails rub in a little vaseline or cold cream every night before retiring. Soon you will see a marked improvement in the condition of the nails.

Gardens For Little People.

Many mothers are now planning to have a little garden for John and Mary because this summer they will be big enough to profit by it, says Jessie Wright Whitcomb in the Mother's Magazine. Many mothers are also ruefully remembering the crash of hopes last summer, so far as the children's gardening was concerned, and are wondering whether it will be worth while to try it again. They remember seeds dug up or drained off with excessive watering, flower plants ruthlessly jerked up and weeds left standing, dried and parched and cracked little beds or tangles of triumphant jimson, dandelions and knot grass.

Or perhaps it may recall anxious little workers and sorry disappointment over poor, spindly, flowerless plants. We have had all sorts of experiences in our family, and I feel as though a succession of summers had drilled into me exactly what is what for a small child's garden.

The main thing is to have a very limited variety of seeds and those of a strong, hardy, free blooming sort. A child of three, four or five years can have a satisfactory garden of three sorts of seeds, so that he can learn the leaves of three plants and then weed out everything else.

Children love flowers, but they do not love disappointment, and the way to make contented little gardeners, even of children who perhaps have but little affinity with the soil, is to limit the varieties of seeds you give them and to have those varieties all bright, free bloomers.

Baby an Important Patron.

Everywhere baby is receiving proofs that he is the most important person in the community. Moreover, it is being taken into account that baby does not stay at home, as he used to, except for occasional and brief airings.

Even the hotels, which are generally thought of as soulless and indifferent and which formerly thought they were making ample provision for the infrequent and undesired baby visitor if they provided a high chair or two, have awakened to the fact that the baby of the twentieth century is a person to be reckoned with and to be catered to.

"A cot!" was the reply to a request of this kind recently at one of the large hotels. "Yes, we can put a cot in your room if you desire. But would not your child be more comfortable in a crib?"

The mother, who had been worried lest her baby should not sleep well on an improvised bed in a strange place, almost fell on the hotel man's neck as she expressed her gratitude for his suggestion. Soon the porter brought in a little white cradle, with comfortable mattress and pillows, just like the one at home, and the parents were won as permanent patrons of that hotel.

In the splendid new railway stations that have been built recently, too, the fact that baby travels has been remembered, and in the well equipped and supervised rest room there are dainty cribs for the baby that has been fretted and wearied by his unaccustomed railway journey.

Reserved Boys.

Mothers, don't be too ready to think that your boy shows a want of trust in you if he occasionally keeps a secret or omits to tell you every little thing that he has done. Many boys are very reserved. They cannot bear to speak of what they feel deeply. Make your son understand that mother will always be glad to hear what he chooses to tell her, but that she does not want to force his confidence. Then he will speak much more freely to you than he would do if he felt that you were "always after him."

Mouth Breathing.

Mouth breathing, which is one of the signs which point to the presence of adenoids, can only be cured by going to the root of the matter and having the adenoids removed by operation. With very young children it is a wise precaution to do as the Indian squaws do, and that is to press the lips of the young child together when he first falls asleep.

For the Children

Two Little Sons of the

The two little sailors shown in the photograph are the sons of Gustaf Adolf, duke of Skania, the crown prince of Sweden. Princess Margaret, their mother, is a daughter of the Duke of Connaught, brother of the late King Edward VII. of England. The oldest boy standing to the left is named Gustaf Adolf after his father. He is seven years old, and his title is Duke of Westerbotten. The other boy is named Sigvard. He will be six next July, and his title is Duke of Upland. They are charming little fellows in appearance, as they probably are in fact. Sweden comprises the eastern half of the Scandinavian peninsula, as all good geography scholars know. It has a population of 5,521,000 and is separated from Norway by the Kolen mountains.

The Five Senses.

Any number can take part in this game, which requires a little preparation beforehand. Pencil and paper must be given each player, and the various articles for testing the senses should be in readiness before the game begins. A card and wafers, such as are used in progressive euchre, may be given each guest to keep the record of his successes and errors. As prizes first and booby are given for the best and worst answers.

The players are blindfolded, and a tray is passed to each in turn, with a dozen or more different things to be tasted—sweet, sour, bitter, bread, cake, fruits, etc. Only a very small particle of each is given. The tray is then taken away, the eyes unblindfolded, and each player must write down the names of all the articles he has tasted that he can remember.

A tray is brought to the blindfolded players, with spices, medicines, flowers and perfumes, which are offered them to smell, after which, as before, they must write down the names of all the things they think they have smelled.

Again the players are blindfolded, while others of the company make various noises all at once—singing, crying, laughing, pounding, ringing bells, tearing paper, playing on musical instruments, etc.

A tray is brought to the blindfolded players with various articles to be felt by each in turn. These may be wool, cotton, cloth, marble, hair, flour, ice, china, glass or anything thought of. Then, as usual, they must write down the names of all things they can remember.

A tray is placed before the players, now unblindfolded, and they are to look at the group of objects displayed upon it while twenty is slowly counted; then the tray is removed, and the players must write a list of all the things they have seen, so far as they remember.

This game is a good drill in observation and memory, as well as an amusing entertainment.

Straightening Walking Sticks.

Walking sticks as they grow are often crooked and have to be straightened. A heap of sand is provided on the top of a hot stove, into which the sticks are plunged until they become pliable. The workman takes the crooked stick while it is still hot and inserts it in a notch cut in a stout board, placed at an angle inclined from him, where he bends and straightens it. When it has become perfectly straight it is thrown down to cool, after which it becomes rigid and permanent in its lines.

GUILTY

There Was an Epidemic of Backsliding

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Radiant with happiness at just having become engaged to the dearest and most beautiful girl in the whole world, Frederick Lang, attorney and counselor at law, disdained the crawling elevator and leaped the stairs to his office with aesthetic bounds.

Secluded in his own private room, he flung aside hat and overcoat and sat down before the snapping wood fire to dream it all over again—the sweet wooing, leading up to the eloquent proposal, and the loving though shy acceptance.

It was then that the specter of his past and present arose and gazed him, whereupon Mr. Lang groaned dismally and for a brief second forgot the most beautiful girl in the world.

In the days of his early youth, even when he had been a verdant freshman, his evil spirit had suggested to his reflective mind that artful woman was not essential to man's happiness. This suggestion came shortly after Lang had burned with dreary rites a bundle of pale blue letters and a lock of unnaturally golden hair.

Singularly enough, nine of his classmates became bitter misogynists about this time, and on the very day that the golden haired beauty became the bride of a prosperous though possibly humdrum merchant Lang called a meeting of the nine woman haters, and thus the Bachelors' club was formed.

They were a party of young college boys who in ten years would realize how absurd were the vows they were now making. These vows were to mingle with the softer sex socially, and even an occasional flirtation would not be considered reprehensible, but to marry—never!

Deadly in its object of depriving deceitful and designing females of college bred husbands, the Bachelors' club flourished mightily for a decade. The members were faithful to their vows, and there were never ten more happy, healthy, athletic specimens of manhood, devoted to college sports in general.

These ten charter members had all hailed from the same great eastern city, and as each one finished his course and departed from college and hung up his shingle in the home city New York became the headquarters of the Bachelors' club.

To the credit of the members be it said that not one had been known to cast a wistful eye toward the gentler sex. They did their duty as one man at all affairs not distinctly "stag," but invariably they gathered around the mahogany tables in the luxurious clubroom with relieved faces and lightened hearts and talked golf and fishing and motorcars until they yawned themselves homeward at midnight.

Frederick Lang whistled mirthlessly as he pondered all these things. He, the originator of the club, its founder and president, had been the first to succumb to the loveliness of a woman—a mere girl—and now all women for Edna's sake were a matter for tender consideration and chivalrous regard.

He cursed himself for a green young fool and felt no better afterward.

Finally he arose and, slipping into his overcoat, made his way slowly toward the quarters of the Bachelors' club.

Lang nodded rather grumpily to his fellow club members as he flung himself into a chair, and, to his surprise, they as grumpily responded.

On the table in front of him lay a small silver mounted gavel, a glass of water and the club register. The rapping of the gavel brought the usual monthly meeting to order.

The secretary, one Wally Wicks—Dr. Wallace Wentworth Wicks—droned the dull routine of the last meeting and then lazily unscrewed the top of his fountain pen.

Lang was very pale as he arose and rested his finger tips on the table before him. "I have an announcement to make, gentlemen, which may come as a surprise to many of you—er—in fact—it was a surprise to me."

He paused and wiped his brow nervously.

There was a rustle of interest around the table as the members leaned forward.

"Of course you are all familiar with the purpose of our club, and we can all bear witness to the loyalty of our members in years past. It has been hinted to me—hinted to me that one of our members is desirous of withdrawing from the club—that—er—he is no longer eligible as a member."

A sharp sigh went around the table as by one accord each man's eye furtively sought his neighbor.

"I suggest," continued Lang in a firmer voice—"I suggest that the guilty member be spared the embarrassment of publicly proclaiming his infidelity to the club; that he be permitted to present his resignation in writing to the secretary, to be read at the next monthly meeting, and that his absence from that meeting be the only announcement of his withdrawal. We will vote upon this resolution."

It was carried with enthusiasm and possibly scorn, while each one marvelled if the suspected one was known to the other, and not one gave a thought to the founder of the club—the austere young president himself.

When Wally Wicks had scratched this important matter upon the minute book, there being no other business before the meeting, it was unanimously adjourned, and with a sudden return of spirits the bachelors gathered around the fire. There was no mention of the backsliding member. Until the guilty man's name was made public at the next meeting by his absence he should be treated with all the respect due to a member of the club, and this was an excellent plan, because each man had his own suspicion.

"Heard a deuced funny thing today," said Jack Fletcher as he lighted a cigarette. "My landlady, old Miss Martell, asked me last week what brand of tea we used at the club. I told her 'Kentucky.' 'Never heard of it,' replied the old lady. She asked me where we got it, and I said at Gifford's grocery."

A laugh went around the circle as a suggestive gurgle, and a clink of china came from the buffet where the club waiter was preparing to brew Kentucky tea poured from a bottle stamped with a gold seal. As the ladle of the punch bowl scraped musically Fletcher continued:

"Stopped in Gifford's today, and the man said Miss Martell had just called for a pound of Kentucky tea."

Again they laughed—rather absently—this time. Indeed, each man seemed more intent on his own thoughts than on Fletcher's story.

When the punch bowl had served its purpose and they had parted for the night Lang, with one last regretful glance around at the rooms in which he had spent so many pleasant hours, there was a feeling of constraint that seemed unavoidable.

The following month passed slowly. Lang managed to postpone the announcement of his engagement until after the next monthly meeting of the club, and when the day finally dawned it found him with his resignation carefully prepared and addressed to Wally Wicks as secretary. He knew the wrath and opprobrium that would be cast upon him when it was learned that he was the guilty man. He regretted the good friends he would lose, but he would gain Edna, and that made up for everything.

He dropped the letter in the post with a sigh of positive relief. When the time came for the monthly meeting of the Bachelors' club to go into session he would be with Edna.

The tall clock in the corner of the clubroom ticked loudly. The great fire on the hearth crackled noisily. The heels of the club servitor rapped smartly on the polished floor as he went briskly to and fro. On the large table rested a glass of water, the club register and a silver mounted gavel. Around the table were ten chairs, but none of the members had arrived. The clock struck 9.

At 1 o'clock the waiter tiptoed across the still empty room and peered sleepily at a little pile of letters which had accumulated during the evening. They had been brought by various messenger boys. Ten in all, they were addressed to Wallace Wentworth Wicks, secretary, and one envelope inscribed in Wally Wicks' own scrubby handwriting, directed to "The Secretary Pro Tem."

"A bally shame it is," grumbled the servant as he stored the letters and book in a convenient cupboard, "a bloomin' bally shame, to keep a man a-waitin' around 'ere 'alf the night fer a meetin' and not one of them gents a-showin' up! I never seen them a-doin' nothin' like it before. And I 'opes never to again, I'm that blinky!"

He yawned drearily, moved to the buffet and quaffed a liberal portion of the neglected "Kentucky tea" and snapped out the electric lights.

In the meantime ten guilty men had persuaded ten artless maidens, each the dearest and most beautiful of her sex, to name a most important day.

Great was the hilarity and many the jokes when by mutual agreement all met once more in the clubrooms a month later. Many toasts were offered and many healths drunk in the "Kentucky tea." Before separating it was voted that the name of the association be changed from Bachelors' to Married Men's club.

But an element had been introduced by matrimony that gradually reduced the frequency and the enthusiasm of the meetings. Certain of the wives objected and prevailed upon their husbands to remain at home on club nights. This reduced the attendance, and the club finally disbanded.

INTERVIEWING CARUSO.

A Persistent Reporter's Experience With the Great Tenor.

A reporter who had orders to interview Enrico Caruso of the golden voice went to the Knickerbocker hotel the other day about noon. He was told by the singer's valet that his master was taking a nap, but would probably see him at 5 o'clock if he would give notice by telephone.

At 5 o'clock the reporter went to a telephone. The man who answered said, "About what do you wish to talk with Mr. Caruso?"

The reporter could hear the strains of "Celeste Aida" pealing through the room back of the man at the telephone. He had the assurance, therefore, that the tenor was at home.

"I will tell Mr. Caruso himself when he is at liberty to come to the telephone," he said.

"But I am Mr. Caruso," said the man at the other end of the telephone.

"I know better than that," said the reporter. "It is just because mutton-head servants like yourself lie like that that it is impossible to give messages through you with any satisfaction. Get off that line and ask Mr. Caruso to come to the phone or I'll come up there and make you into a salad dressing."

"But, sir, you must not talk to me like that. I am Mr. Caruso himself, no one else, and you are insulting me when I am trying to do you a favor."

"Say," roared the reporter in exasperation, "are you so stupid that you can't understand that I can hear Mr. Caruso singing right in the room with you—you spaghetti filled goat?"

"Ah! I see," said the voice. "Come right up."

The reporter went up with a vast feeling of triumph. Signor Caruso opened the door himself, smiling wickedly. And on a stand in the center of the room was a phonograph from which were still issuing the strains of "Celeste Aida" in the singer's own voice. One of his favorite amusements is to hear himself sing.

The reporter went away wondering if he had really apologized enough.—New York World.

A Bit of Chinese Fun.

The love of fun is not unknown among the serious looking Celestials who during the last decade have been collecting in the Australian colonies.

A storekeeper, wishing to advertise his wares in the Chinese language, engaged a Chinese to paint a sign, expecting, of course, that it would be a very enticing one. It did not answer his expectations, however, for the only perceptible effect it had on "the relatives of the sun and moon," as the Chinese term themselves, was to excite a grin of broadest dimensions.

At length the storekeeper, by a considerable bribe, obtained a translation in English of the advertisement and found that it read as follows: "Don't buy anything here—storekeeper is a rogue."

That sign came down in a jiffy, and the storekeeper spent the next week looking for the ingenious sign painter.

"There, now," he said boastfully, "tell your coun-

Doing Good.

Let me do good and never know
To whom my life a blessing brings,

Flit by unseen with their white wings.
Let me do good and never know

DAZED THE PROFESSOR.

And Left Him a Little Doubtful as to the Sanity of Dr. Furness.

In a paper in the Harvard Graduates' Magazine Owen Wister relates this anecdote of Horace Howard Furness, the editor of the Variorum Shakspeare: Some time after his reputation as a Shakespearean scholar had become established beyond the seas and learned travelers came to knock at his door, an especially serious, unpliant doctor of something or other, bearing letters of introduction from some German university, was shown one day into Dr. Furness' town library.

Between the library and the hall was a drawing room with a circular ottoman in its center. Upstairs lived a pet squirrel which the cat had eyed so menacingly that watching had become ceaseless, and the whole household was in suspense.

After the usual introductory civilities were exchanged the Teuton speaking laboriously into the outstretched ear trumped—for Dr. Furness was deaf—and while Tieck and Schlegel and other ponderous authors were being discussed, Dr. Furness, through the drawing room door, saw descending the stairs a squirrel in a cat's mouth, and behind them a distracted housemaid.

Furness leaped from the solemn professor, who could not see the cause from where he sat, and dashed into the front room, where he met the cat, the squirrel and the maid. The cat dropped the squirrel, which began running round and round the ottoman with the cat after it, the maid behind the cat and Dr. Furness behind the maid.

The German professor could not see the animals, therefore, when Dr. Furness tripped and fell and began beating at the cat with his trumpet, and the bedlam chase departed as it had come, leaving the editor of the Variorum on the floor by the ottoman, the visitor rose, bowed slightly in perfect silence and left the house. And so these two doctors parted.

It is not known what the Teuton said upon returning to Germany.

The flume is the main supply pipe of the company leading to San Francisco. ## LODI MAN ARRESTED FOR MISTREATING GIRL

Fruit Buyer's Office Said to Have Been Rendezvous

Following a hurried investigation by the Lodi Board of Education, James Anderson, a prominent fruit-buyer, was taken into custody on a warrant charging him with mistreating a fourteen-year-old girl. Two serious charges were preferred and Anderson pleaded guilty to both. Judge Frank Smith fixing his bond at $3000.

Anderson is about 27 years of age and is manager of the Lodi branch office of a New York firm. His arrest caused a tremendous sensation, and feeling, it is said, runs high against him. Anderson's office, it is alleged, has been a rendezvous where boys and girls have met clandestinely for some time.

Shocking orgies, it is claimed, have gone on in the place, and as a result of the investigation three boys of school age have been placed in the Detention Home in Stockton. Officers declare that a third charge may be filed against Anderson before the investigation is completed. The identity of the children is withheld.

LAWMAKERS LEAVE FOR THEIR HOMES

State Legislature Completes Long Session

The fortieth session of the California Legislature finished its business late the afternoon of May 13th by receiving a large number of bills from the printer, and adjourned. The session is over, many legislators have left for their homes, and there were scarcely half a dozen in the chambers of the two bodies when adjournment was taken.

In the Assembly 2139 bills were introduced and 700 passed, while in the upper house 1783 measures were introduced and 401 received the approval of the two houses.

It was a dull day around the legislative halls, the numerous lobby had disappeared silently and without ostentation, and the members of the Legislature had been leaving in twos and threes for their homes during the past twenty-four hours. All was a wait on the printing office to bring back the bills. At first it was said that adjournment would be accomplished at noon, but the hour was extended from time to time until it was evening before the final work was accomplished and the session was declared closed.

With but six members in their places a resolution was introduced in the upper house by Senator Tom Finn relative to the illness of Senator J. J. Cassidy of San Francisco, and thanking the Sisters of Mercy at Mater Misericordiae Hospital for their care, which had brought to health one who had lingered long on the brink of the grave. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The record of the Fortieth California Legislature includes the passage of the following bills.

First—Workmen's compensation act, providing for the compulsory compensation of injured workmen by their employers, creating a State insurance fund by means of which employers may transfer their liability to the State and establishing safety requirements for shops and factories.

Ninth—Act creating State Civil Service Commission and providing for the extension of the civil service to practically all State employees, except those appointed by the Governor.

PANAMA EXPOSITION NEWS

Rapid progress is being made upon the ferry slips at the foot of Fillmore street and the Marina is fully prepared for the transplantation of trees which has been nurtured in the Presidio nurseries.

Construction upon the Agricultural section has been begun by the driving of piles for the Food Products Building and the erection of a contractors' office of works. Piles for the Transportation Building have been driven and the ground is now ready for the completion of the structure.

The north facade of the Machinery Palace of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is being covered with wire and laths and in the next few days will be clothed with staff of imitation travertine stone. In the center of the structure there has been erected a workshop where, under the direction of Paul E. Deniville, about a hundred plasterers, moulders and modelers are hard at work. An idea of the immensity of the building can be gained from the dimensions of the pillar cornices, which are in some cases more than twelve feet in diameter. The north section of the building will be completed as far as the outside is concerned before the remainder is built. It will then be a matter of no more than two or three weeks before the whole building is ready for the mural decorations, though they will not be started until the end of the year.
